How much does a shock absorber cost?

Depending on your vehicle's suspension system, it may have two shocks or four, so it's also important to determine if the shocks that need to be replaced are the front or rear shocks (or both). A basic shock absorber costs between $30 to $50 from Parts Geek, while higher end models with special features can run as much as several hundred dollars.

Do you sell car shock absorbers online?

By not having a brick-and-mortar store and selling online, we're able to pass the savings on to you for all of the parts we sell, including car shock absorbers.
